RALPH C. WILSON, JR.
President

The president and sole owner of the Buffalo Bills is Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., a young Detroit insurance and trucking executive.

A rabid professional football fan from childhood, Wilson had always wanted to own a franchise. He made every effort to acquire a NFL franchise, either by expansion of the league or through purchase of an existing franchise. But, as Wilson puts it . . . "nothing was ever available."

Wilson did, however, manage to become a stockholder in the Detroit Lions. That merely served to further his appetite for pro football which is, he insists, "the most exciting spectator sport the world has ever seen."

When the American Football League came into being in the late summer of 1959, Wilson made an immediate bid to acquire a franchise. Within two days, he obtained a franchise in the infant professional circuit. Within a few weeks, he located it in Buffalo.

One of the most important influences in Wilson's decision for Buffalo was a local building contractor, George Schaaf. Schaaf had been Wilson's commanding officer aboard a naval minesweeper during World War II. As a native of Western New York and an ardent fan, Schaaf recalled the days of the All-American Conference Bills, the tremendous fan support the club had enjoyed, and the great loss to the city when the AAC died and the Bills were not among the teams absorbed into the National Football League.

Wilson questioned Schaaf closely on the present temper of the City of Buffalo regarding pro football because . . . "11 years is a long time and I knew Buffalo had had many disappointments through promises from the NFL that had never materialized."

"But George and many other of Buffalo's most prominent citizens convinced me that the city was one of the greatest sports towns in America."

Wilson was graduated from the University of Virginia and subsequently attended the University of Michigan Law school before enlisting in the Navy. He earned his commission within a year and saw service in both the Atlantic and Pacific Theaters.

A modest and completely unassuming man, Wilson has always been reluctant to discuss his war experience. However, a national magazine once wrote him up as one of America's most distinguished heroes.

Wilson joined his father in the insurance business after the war. As he began to attain personal success, he branched out. Today Wilson's interests include insurance, trucking, road building, oil drilling, horse racing . . . and last, but far from least, ownership of the Buffalo Bills in the American Football League.

PATRICK J. MCGRODER
Vice President - Director

During the decade prior to the 1960 formation of the American Football League, Patrick J. (Pat) McGroder was a spearheading force behind the ceaseless efforts of the City of Buffalo to obtain a major league professional football franchise.

McGroder, the man with a million friends, labored night and day, both in official capacities of city government — ranging from Chairman of the Stadium and Auditorium Board (1954-58) through Commissioner of Parks (1958), to Sports and Redevelopment Coordinator (1959-61) — and unofficially as just about the most enthusiastic sports booster Buffalo has ever had.

Then Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. was granted an AFL franchise and began giving serious consideration to locating it in Buffalo. McGroder, as Sports and Redevelopment Coordinator, negotiated the necessary stadium arrangements for the city. The contracts were signed with a minimum of negotiation and delay and McGroder admits—"It was a very happy day for me. Pro football was finally back home after a long time away." McGroder's ceaseless efforts since 1949 to bring pro football back to Buffalo were partially responsible for his selection at B.A.C. "Sportsman of the Year" in 1951, and as one of The Buffalo Evening News' "Ten Outstanding Citizens" in 1958. Equally important in relation to the latter award was the fact that McGroder fathered the highly successful "Mothers' March on Polio".

The firm friendship between Wilson and McGroder developed during their first meeting. It was nurtured by firm convictions, on the parts of both men, that Buffalo "is the finest pro football city in the country." That friendship ultimately resulted in the election of McGroder, in December 1961, to a vice-presidency in the Buffalo Bills' organization as well as membership on the board of directors.

The Bills do not represent McGroder's only connection with professional sports. He is also a member of the board of directors of the Buffalo Hockey Club. He formerly served on the board of the Buffalo Baseball Club.

McGroder is a former vice president of the Greater Buffalo Advertising Club and a former member of the board of directors of the Automobile Club of Buffalo. He was president of the Police Athletic League during the first six years of its existence. He has also served as a member of the D'Youville College Board of Governors.

RICHARD F. (DICK) GALLAGHER
GENERAL MANAGER

Long before Ralph Wilson placed his American Football League franchise in the City of Buffalo, New York . . . or even before he had a franchise to place anywhere . . . he knew who he wanted to be his general manager, if and when. That man was Dick Gallagher.

Wilson, as everybody else, was aware of the Cleveland Browns success story. But, in contrast to most people, Wilson realized that a single man "does not an organization make," and that Paul Brown had expert help at Cleveland. Much of that help was supplied by Gallagher, whose titles were director of player personnel and assistant coach, but whose duties encompassed much additional front office and public relations responsibility. Gallagher was often . . . and aptly . . . described as Paul Brown's first lieutenant.

Gallagher, a native of Ironton, Ohio, served two tenures with the Browns. Dick originally joined Paul Brown as end coach in 1947, the second year of the defunct All-American Conference. The next three years the Browns produced one of the best teams in the history of pro football. Gallagher, himself, insists the 1948 Cleveland Browns team was the "greatest I have ever seen."

When the A.A.C. died after the 1949 season, Gallagher returned to college coaching. Dick, who earlier had been an assistant coach of football and head basketball coach at William and Mary, took over the football reigns at Santa Clara. He coached the nationally ranked Broncos through 1953 when the school dropped football.

In 1954, Dick again joined the pros, becoming a member of the Chicago Cardinals coaching staff. A year later, Paul Brown called him "back home" as assistant coach and director of player personnel.

For four years thereafter, Gallagher signed the most promising collegiate talent available to the Browns. Jimmy Brown, Bobby Mitchell, Preston Carpenter, Milt Plum are a few of Gallagher's signees.

In addition to his other duties, the personable Irishman flashed his friendly smile, ready wit, and his countless football stories along the Ohio banquet trail during the off-season. He was Browns' No. 1 ambassador of good-will, just as he has been the Bills' since the day he signed on as general manager. From February 1, 1960 until the present, Gallagher has been the guest speaker at over 400 sports gatherings, numbering in size from 10 to 750 people.

Dick and his wife, June are popular members of the community of Hamburg. Two daughters; Kay and Patty, complete the family.

BILLS' HEAD COACH
LOU SABAN

A student of the Chinese language (Mandarin dialect) and head coach of a professional football club would ordinarily make strange bed fellows . . . if they are two people. If one person is both . . . and Lou Saban decidedly is . . . the incongruity is even more obvious and demands a reasonable explanation.

"Football came naturally and, I guess chronologically," according to the headman of the Buffalo Bills. "Any fluency I have — or did have in Chinese — was born of World War II and the demand for Chinese language interpreters in the C.B.I. (China-Burma-India Theater). They sure didn't teach Chinese back home."

Back home is Brookfield, Illinois, where Saban was born October 13, 1921. Located in the heart of the Mid-West high school football belt, Brookfield considered the fortunes of its high school football team to be of considerable importance — equivalent, approximately, to the desirability of balancing the village budget.

Lou's three brothers, Mike, Joe and John, either preceded or followed his footsteps as an outstanding Brookfield High School star. Thus the Sabans, over a long period, had much to do with establishing Brookfield's reputation as a top Illinois high school football citadel. Mike ultimately played for Indiana; Joe for Illinois, while John performed for Xavier.

Following graduation from high school in 1940, Lou entered the University of Indiana at Bloomington where he came under the tutelage of the famed "Bo" McMillin. At Indiana, Saban starred during two varsity years as a single wing quarterback. The resemblance — for the benefit of the uninitiated — to the currently popular T-type quarterback is slight. Single wing quarterbacks are essentially blocking backs. T-quarterbacks have never been renowned for their ability to "cream" their fellow men. Matter of fact, most coaches are somewhat less than enthusiastic over the prospect their quarterbacks might block targets of opportunity.

Saban was the Hoosiers' captain and most valuable player in 1942, as well as an All-Big Ten selection. All-America honors probably would have awaited Lou as a senior in 1943, but the military got there first — with aforementioned Oriental overtones.

In due course of events, Saban was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant in the O.S.S. (Office of Strategic Services). "I wasn't a cloak and dagger agent," points out Saban. "I was assigned to language school at Fort Benning, Georgia. When I had completed the course, I was ordered to the C.B.I."

The C.B.I. was perhaps the least glamorous of the major theaters of war. It provided the backdrop for the Hump, General Joseph "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell and Merrill's Marauders. But the war there — all in all — was wet, dirty, jungle ridden, terribly costly in men and materials with territorial successes measured in feet and inches instead of miles — and vastly underpublicized.

Saban spent 3½ years in service. During his military tenure, the All-America Conference was taking shape on paper as a post-war rival to the National League.

Even before Lou's honorable discharge in early 1946, he had been signed by the Cleveland Browns, of the new circuit. Thus Saban was in at the start of one of sports most fabulous success sagas.

During the four-year life of the A.A.C., the Browns won four league championships. Saban captained the Browns during all campaigns. Twice, in 1948 and 1949 when Lou was an All-League line-backing selection, it is generally conceded the Browns were the best football club in the history of the sport.

At the conclusion of the 1949 season the A.A.C. folded as an entity through a merger with the NFL and Saban retired as a player. The timing of the merger and Lou's retirement were coincidental. There was no connection.

"It was merely," recalls Lou, "time for me to get out as a player and get started on the coaching career which had always been my ultimate goal in football."

Upon retirement, Saban was tapped for the head coach's job by Case Institute of Technology. Lou took over in 1950 and mentored the Roughriders through 1952. During that period, Saban continued active in pro football as an authoritative halftime commentator for the Browns regional TV network.

In 1952 and 1953, Lou was an assistant coach on the staff of the University of Washington Huskies. He came back to the Big Ten in 1954 as an assistant at Northwestern. In 1955, Saban became the Wildcat's headman.

Saban forsook coaching the following year to establish himself in insurance—a business to which he continues to devote time and effort during the off-season. Lou admits giving considerable thought to the prospect of divorcing himself entirely from football and concentrating exclusively on a business career during 1956. But the lure of the sport proved too strong.

In 1957, Saban returned to the game as head coach of Western Illinois. He won conference championships in 1958 and 1959. The latter year, Lou's Leathernecks were undefeated and ranked second in small college nation. It was at Western Illinois that Lou coached Larry Garron, now the Boston Patriots' outstanding running star, to Little All-America fame.

With the formation of the American Football League, Saban returned to pro football as coach of the Boston Patriots. The Patriots were among the last clubs to be organized. Despite the late start, Saban fielded a tough early season club that won four of five pre-season games and established pro football on a solid foundation in Boston. A succession of injuries cut the Patriots down later in the season but they remained a colorful, high-scoring crew that was exciting to watch and invariably in contention.

Saban directed the Pats through the first four games of the 1961 season before switching to the Bills as director of player personnel. Lou's hiring by Owner Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., was predicated by Wilson's desire to "have Lou on our side since he gave us so much trouble from the other side of the field."

Saban's work as director of player personnel was in large measure responsible for the fine draft the Bills again enjoyed in 1961. Buffalo signed 14 of its first 21 choices, plus an excellent crop of free agents.

When Wilson decided on a coaching change for the Bills after the 1961 season, Saban's was the first name mentioned and the only one seriously considered. Lou replaced Buster Ramsey, officially, on January 18, 1962.

Married in 1947 at the height of his playing career with the Cleveland Browns, Lou and his wife Lorraine have four children . . . Tom, Barbara, Patricia and Christine.

In his spare time, Saban does a little generalized cooking and "do it yourselfing" around the house. "I also read anything I can get my hands on," says Lou. "Reading helps me relax."

For additional relaxation, Saban performs musically on the bass-guitar, although, as Lou puts it, "there is a definite lack of proficiency in my playing."

Be that as it may, there is no lack of proficiency in Saban's coaching. He's a learned and dedicated football coach with the added ability to develop overlooked talent into polished professionals.

JOEL COLLIER

Defensive Backfield and Linebacker Coach

Joel Collier, assistant coach of the Buffalo Bills with responsibility for the defensive secondary, could easily be mistaken for a college professor of Romantic Literature, a research physicist, a concert master in a major symphony orchestra. In fact, an initial meeting would undoubtedly leave the other party with the distinct impression that Collier is anything but what he actually is—a dedicated pro football coach with an All-America intercollegiate playing background.

"I can't remember," says the soft spoken Collier, "when I didn't plan on a coaching career. As a child, I devoured everything of a technical football nature I could get my hands on."

Collier's childhood was spent in Rock Island, Illinois, where he was born June 7, 1932. A typical (every spare minute in the fall) pre-teen sandlot football career was followed by high school playing stardom. Unlike nearly all high school players who are content to learn one assignment (their own) and a single phase of the game, Collier studied each position and assimilated an all-around knowledge of the game's intricacies. Joel's Rock Island High School Coach Shorty Almquist was as quick to spot Collier's coaching potential as he was his undeniable playing ability. "Coach Almquist," says Joel, "did everything to nurture my ambitions to be a coach as well as to develop me as a player."

First things first, of course. Thus it was as an All-State end Collier entered Northwestern University in 1950. Joel's three-year varsity career was climaxed by his election to the Wildcats' captaincy in 1953. That same year, the 6'2", 200-pounder, was selected All-Big Ten as well as nominated to several All-America teams.

The start of Collier's coaching career was delayed, however, by a call to service. He served in the Marshall Islands with the United States Army during the years 1954-56.

Collier finally got to Western Illinois in 1957, just in time to join Lou Saban who was then making his debut as head coach of the "Leathernecks." Thus began a professional relationship that has continued to this day.

In 1958, with Collier now a full-fledged, salaried member of the Western Illinois coaching staff, the "Leathernecks" won a conference championship. In 1959, Western Illinois went undefeated and was ranked second in the nation among small colleges.

Collier joined Saban's Boston Patriots' coaching staff in 1960, upon formation of the American Football League, as defensive backfield assistant.

When Lou became head coach of the Buffalo Bills in January 1962, Collier was quick to heed a call to rejoin his friend and chief. Collier's appointment to the Bills' coaching staff was officially announced by Saban and owner Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. less than a week after Saban, himself, had been hired.

Collier and his wife, Shirley, reside with their three children in Tonawanda, New York.

JOHN MAZUR
Backfield-Receiver Coach

The youngest member of the Buffalo Bills' coaching staff is John Mazur.

Be that as it may, the 6'2", 210-pound former Notre Dame quarterback is considered one of the game's most astute coaches. Saban, in announcing Mazur's appointment as offensive backfield and receiver coach, said, "John is a real student of the complexities of the game, and equally important, he can teach what he knows."

The 32-year-old Mazur was born and raised in Plymouth, Pennsylvania, June 17, 1932, which is close to Wilkes-Barre, a hot-bed of Pennsylvania high school football.

As a result, Mazur's great reputation earned at high school as an All-State quarterback, some forty colleges and universities actively sought his enrollment.

Mazur chose Notre Dame. Neither he nor the University ever had reason to be sorry. Entering as a freshman in 1948, John played outstanding football over the next four years (1 freshman, 3 varsity) in behalf of the Fighting Irish.

As a sophomore, John was a member of the 1949 National Championship team coached by the incomparable Frank Leahy. It was considered unusual, in those halcyon days of Notre Dame football glory, that a sophomore quarterback should make even the traveling roster not to mention that he should play an amount of time sufficient to earn a letter. Mazur did both. He also lettered in 1950 and 1951, gaining All-Midwest and All-America recognition his senior year.

Mazur was honorably discharged in 1954 in time to join the Vancouver Lions of the Western Canada Inter-Provincial Professional League, which club had outbid the NFL's Dallas Cowboys for his services. John's playing career, as a pro, was brief and injury ridden. A succession of leg hurts necessitated his retirement after a single starring year.

Annis Stukas, then coach at Vancouver, noted sadly when John decided to "hang 'em up." "I hate to see Mazur retire. He would have been one of the outstanding quarterbacks in the history of Canadian football."

Canadian pro football's loss immediately became American college football's gain. Mazur accepted a position as backfield assistant at Tulane University under Andy Pilney. After three years, Mazur severed a most pleasant relationship with the New Orleans school to accept a similar position at Marquette. In 1959, Big John joined the staff of Boston University under Steve Sinko. There he remained, until Lou Saban—long an admirer of Mazur's coaching abilities, and in a position at the time, as coach of the Boston Patriots, to judge those abilities first hand—issued an invitation to join the Bills' staff.

Mazur was married in 1958. He and his wife, Bernadine, are the parents of a daughter.

JERRY SMITH
Offensive Line Coach

Aside from Head Coach Lou Saban, the only member of the Buffalo Bills' coaching staff with extensive pro experience as a player is Jerome "Jerry" Smith—34-year-old native of Dayton, Ohio.

The strapping 228-pound Smith—who will have responsibility for the Bills' offensive line—played a total of three professional years with the San Francisco 49'ers and the Green Bay Packers.

Following three starring intercollegiate seasons at the University of Wisconsin where he earned All-Big Ten and All Mid-West honors at tackle and was graduated with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Physical Education, Smith was drafted by the 49'ers in 1952.

Jerry got in two seasons before commencing a two-year service hitch. Commissioned a 1st Lieutenant in the U. S. Army Transportation Corps, Smith served as platoon officer in Germany. He also was assigned to Fort Eustis, Virginia as assistant coach of the camp football team.

This latter, service-connected experience, influenced Smith's ultimate choice of post playing careers.

"I enjoyed coaching very much," said Jerry. "I decided then and there to go into the profession full time when my playing days were over." During his two years with San Francisco, Smith had worked during the off season as an account executive for a national brokerage firm. It, too, had been a pleasant and rewarding job and Smith was giving serious consideration to the possibilities of the "grey flannel" life on a full time basis prior to his assignment as assistant coach at Fort Eustis.

Discharged from service in 1956, Smith joined the Green Bay Packers—via trade. Whereas, he had been an offensive guard with the 49'ers, Coach Lisle Blackburn converted Jerry to defensive end with the Packers.

"The Packers of 1956, were not the Packers of today," ruefully recalls Smith. "We didn't win too many games."

After the 1956 season, Smith retired as a player. He rejoined the brokerage firm while awaiting "the right opportunity."

It was forthcoming in 1959. Smith took over as line coach of Dayton University's Flyers. He stayed one season. During his brief tenure, he was instrumental in the development of Bob DeMarco, an outstanding pro lineman with the St. Louis Cardinals.

In 1960, the AFL came into being. Lou Saban needed a defensive line coach at Boston. He called. Smith heard. The two joined forces and are now together again with the Buffalo Bills.

Smith maintains his approximate playing weight and condition with plenty of sports activity and exercise the year round. Jerry is an avid golfer, bowler and swimmer. He also continues active in the more strenuous sports of basketball and handball.

Jerry and his wife Shirley were married in 1959. They are the proud parents of three children.

HARVEY JOHNSON

Director of Player Personnel and Assistant Defensive Coach

The director of player personnel of the Buffalo Bills is Harvey Johnson. Johnson was an All-Southern Conference fullback selection at William and Mary.

Additionally, Harvey was an excellent place-kicker. His powerful and accurate foot was the difference in seven ball games during his college career.

During World War II Johnson served in the United States Navy. One of his duty tours was at Bainbridge where he played football with the powerful Bainbridge Naval Air eleven.

The New York Yankees of the All-American Conference drafted Johnson to their roster when the war had ended. During the next four years, Harvey was an outstanding defensive back for the perennially powerful New Yorkers. Of even greater importance to the team's cause was Johnson's educated toe.

Lou Groza was great in behalf of the Cleveland Browns during that period. However, it was Harvey Johnson who established an AAC record of 46 consecutive points after touchdown during the four year span of the AAC. Ironically, Harvey missed his initial try in 1946 in the Yanks first conference game. His next miss was in the team's final game in 1949 — the last year the conference existed as an entity.

Johnson finished his playing career in the National Football League. In 1953, Harvey retired to the coaching ranks.

His first job was with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Big Four League as an assistant to Carl Voyles. After one year, Johnson was appointed head coach of the Kitchener team of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

He built a record of perfection on that job which will be extremely difficult to improve upon. He bossed the "Dutchmen" for four years. They won four O.R.F.U. Championships.

Harvey bought a "little piece of land" just outside Kitchener in 1955 and commenced to combine football coaching with the raising of thoroughbred horses. You see, he figured the Kitchener job was likely, on the basis of record alone, to become permanent.

The Montreal Alouettes had different ideas. The Big-Four team hit Harvey with an offer, "I just couldn't turn down." The next two seasons — 1958 and 1959 — found Harvey as a top assistant to Peahead Walker at Montreal.

Meantime, the horsebreeding business was coming along fine. Harvey insists "some of my horses even win races."

Johnson originally joined the Bills as defensive backfield coach in 1960. Harvey, wife, Molly Ann, and their five children reside in Welland, Ontario. But during the season they'll spend a lot of time in Buffalo rooting for the Bills.

Birthdate — December 15, 1938

Birthplace — Natchez, Miss.

Hometown — Vidalia, La.

College — Georgia Tech

Height — 6' 3"

Weight — 249

... Unanimous All-AFL in 1963 ... Selected first team by each of big 4 — Sporting News, A.P., U.P.I., N.E.A. ... According to Coach Lou Saban, is not yet close to full potential as a pro ... Big, fast, strong ... Ranks 1-2 among best pulling guards and could be equally effective on defense where he earned great portion of college reputation ... One of Bills' fabulous 1961 college draft selections ... Played in both 1961 Coaches' All-America Bowl at Buffalo and Chicago All-Star Games ... Loves to hunt and fish ... Resides with wife Pat and daughter Cindy, in Clinton, Mississippi. Proprietor of Machine Shop.

TOM SESTAK — Defensive Tackle — Defensive Captain

Birthdate — March 9, 1936

Birthplace — Gonzales, Texas

Hometown — Gonzales, Texas

College — McNeese State

Weight — 270

The American Football League's outstanding defensive lineman ... Possibly the best in pro football ... Everbody's All-AFL selection in 1963; A.P., U.P.I., N.E.A., Sporting News ... Extremely strong, fast and mobile ... Just a small piece of a runner all that is needed to assure tackle ... Averaged 9 unassisted tackles last season ... Has no peer at putting on interior pass rush ... One of pro football's real "sleepers" ... Overlooked till 17th draft round in 1961 ... Commutes between home in Texas and college in Louisiana during off season ... Plenty of hunting and fishing keeps him otherwise occupied.

SEPTEMBER 8

at SAN DIEGO

San Diego 14; Buffalo 10

The Bills, decimated by injuries to their running backs, dropped a 14-10 opening-game decision to the San Diego Chargers. Paul Lowe, brilliant Charger halfback, broke the Bills back early in the second half with a forty-yard off tackle jaunt that promoted a 14-3 lead for the ultimate AFL champs. Jack Kemp's passing and the receiving of Ernie Warlick set up the Bills' only TD early in the 4th period. Halfback Fred Brown carried in from the 4. Following Bob Mittinger's interception, fullback Bob Jackson scored from the one for the first San Diego TD in the second period. Mack Yoho kicked a 17 yard field goal for the Bills first half tally. The game was played in 90 degree temperature.

SEPTEMBER 15

Oakland 35; Buffalo 17

A 21-point second period killed the Bills. The Raiders' Cotton Davidson fired a 73-yard pass to Clemon Daniels after Art Powell's five-yard TD reception. Allan Miller then stormed in from the two after a fumble recovery, before Jack Kemp passed 17 to Elbert Dubenion for the lone Bills' score on the final play of the first half. Ex-Bill Chuck McMurtry recovered a Kemp fumble in the third period and Davidson scored on an 11-yard keeper. Kemp unloaded a 58-yard pass to Dubenion before Oakland's defensive end Jon Jelacic intercepted and carried a deflected pass in from the Bills' 3 for the final TD.

SEPTEMBER 22

Buffalo 27; Kansas City 27

Thirty-three thousand, four hundred eighty-seven loyal fans welcomed the Bills back from the disastrous West Coast trip in the home opener against defending champion Kansas City. Linebacker Mike Stratton's 26-yard TD interception of a Lenny Dawson pass was sandwiched between Tommy Brooker's 31-yard field goal and Dawson's 31-yard TD heave to Fred Arbanas as K.C. took a 10-6 first-period lead. Buffalo scored twice in the second period as Jack Kemp carried the final 2 yards following a 20-yard set-up pass to Bill Miller. The Bills drove 84 yards in 9 plays to open the second half with Kemp rolling in from the 9 and it was 27 to 10. Then the roof fell in. K.C.'s Bobby Bell dropped Willie West in his own end zone for a safety; Dawson passed 2 yards to Chris Burford in the third period before Dawson hit Burford with 4 straight passes including the crusher from the 19 with 40 seconds left in the game. When Dawson threw to Burford for 2 on the P.A.T. attempt; the Chiefs had a tie and there was no joy in Buffalo.

SEPTEMBER 28

Houston 31; Buffalo 20

The Oilers hung the 31-20 shellacking on Buffalo after the Bills dissipated a 17-7 first-quarter advantage. After Mack Yoho booted a 41-yard field goal and Carl Charon recovered Billy Cannon's fumble of the ensuing kickoff and ran for a Buffalo score, the teams traded TD's. Charley Tolar climaxed a 67-yard Houston advance from the five; Cookie Gilchrist slid in from the four as the Bills retaliated 80 yards in four plays. Roger Kochman's 68-yard gallop with Jack Kemp's release pass was the series big gainer. From then on it was all Houston as George Blanda and Charlie Hennigan took over. Blanda fired TD strikes of 15, 14, and 6 yards to his brilliant flanker before the end of the first half with only Mack Yoho's 34-yard field goal in rebuttal. Hennigan caught 8 for the evening and Blanda kicked a 28-yard field goal for the only score of the second half.

Buffalo 12; Oakland 0

OCTOBER 13

Buffalo 35; Kansas City 26

The Bills carved out their second victory, a spine-tingling 35-26 defeat of the Kansas City Chiefs. Jack Kemp passed for 300 yards on 12 of 24 completions. Included was a 63-yard TD heave to Roger Kochman as well as a game breaking 89-yarder to fleet flanker Elbert Dubenion in the final 2 minutes of the game. Just prior to the Kemp-Dubenion histrionics, K.C.'s Tom Brooker — with Buffalo clinging to a 28-26 lead — hit the cross bar; then the left upright with field goal attempts from 49 and 35 yards respectively. Kemp kept from the 1; Cookie slammed twice from the one for first half Buffalo touchdowns. Curtis McClinton ran 17; Abner Haynes 4, for K.C. scores. Lenny Dawson tossed 33 yards to Chris Burford and the luckless Brooker kicked a 38-yard field goal.

OCTOBER 20

Houston 28; Buffalo 14

This one cost the Bills more than a ball game. The brilliant rookie, Roger Kochman, suffered a career-ending injury to his right knee when he was tackled by the Oilers huge Dudley Meredith in the second period of the 28-14 defeat. Charlie Hennigan, who caught 3 TD passes in the first Bills-Houston game, grabbed another in this one; an 8-yarder from George Blanda. Bobby McLeod caught a 20-yarder and Charlie Frazier an 80-yarder from Blanda while chunky Charlie Tolar blasted in from the 1. For the Bills, Bill Miller caught a 4-yard pass from Jack Kemp with no time remaining in the first half and Ernie Warlick was on the business end of a 55-yard pass-run play in the fourth period.

OCTOBER 26

Buffalo 28; Boston 21

Bill Miller, split end incumbent, was injured midway through the fourth period. Replacement Charlie Ferguson caught a desperation heave from Jack Kemp with 28 seconds remaining and the 72-yard play earned the Bills a most pleasurable 28-21 win over arch-rival Boston. Kemp had previously scored three times, each from a yard out as the Bills built a 21-7 lead before Boston bounced back to tie. Harry Crump on a 2-yard plunge and Milt Graham's 77-yard reception of Babe Parilli's pass got the Patriots even in the fourth period and set the stage for the Kemp-Ferguson heroics. Tony Romeo caught a 6-yarder from Parilli in the second period for the first Boston score.

NOVEMBER 3

Buffalo 30; Denver 28

Seven touchdowns were scored through the air as the Bills finally got even on the season. Despite the final 30-28 score, Denver quarterback Don Breau was the game's individual star. After Charlie Ferguson picked up where he had left off the preceding week with a four-yard first-period TD reception from Jack Kemp, Breaux hit Bill Groman with 45 and 21 yard scoring bombs to give the Bronco's a 14-7 halftime lead. Kemp was hurt late in the first half; Daryle Lamonica taking over. The Notre Dame rookie unloaded a 74-yard pass to Glenn Bass in the third period. It was sandwiched between Mack Yoho's 22-yard field goal and Cookie's 2-yard scoring run. Gilchrist had 126 rushing yards on the day. Breaux and Bob Scarpitto combined on a 43-yard pass-run TD in the fourth quarter. Gilchrist matched that with a 35-yard TD reception from Lamonica. Breaux found Lionel Taylor for 71 yards to close out the scoring but not the excitement. Cookie fumbled to Denver's Wahoo McDaniel on the Bills' 25 with 2:00 remaining. But Gene Mingo never got a chance to try for an almost sure 3 points. Don Stone fumbled it right back to Booker Edgerson and the Bills held on.

NOVEMBER 9

Buffalo 27; Denver 17

This one was a little easier. Jack Kemp threw for 21 to Charlie Ferguson as the Bills started enroute to the victory that put them over the five hundred mark for the first time. Gene Mingo countered with a 46-yard field goal at the tag end of the second period but that was as close as the Broncos could get. Kemp hurled a pair of third period TD passes — 58 to Eddie Rutkowski and 7 to Cookie. Mickey Slaughter hit Bill Groman with a fourth-period 74-yarder as well as Lionel Taylor with a five-yard scoring heave. Kemp kept the pressure off — scoring from 14 yards out at the end of an 8-play, 63-yard drive.

NOVEMBER 17

San Diego 23; Buffalo 13

The Bills got away fast before the largest crowd (38,592) of their 4 season history as Cookie Gilchrist carried twice for 23 and 24 yards before easing in from the one in the game's first five minutes. Three plays after the kickoff, San Diego's powerful Chargers got the TD back. Paul Lowe scampered to the 46 on a draw. Then Keith Lincoln hustled the remaining 54 as the Chargers trapped successfully. George Blair kicked a 39-yard field goal before the first period ran out and the Chargers were never to be headed thereafter in the brutally contested battle. Mack Yoho did promote a halftime tie with a 27-yard second-period field goal after a Jack Kemp to Ernie Warlick's 29-yard pass provided the set-up. In the second half, Yoho's 9-yard field goal was the best the Bills could do after marching from their own 29. Meantime, the Chargers Walt Sweeney partially blocked Daryle Lamonica's punt; an unfortunate occurrence that set up Tobin Rote's 17-yard scoring pass to Lance Alworth. Blair put the icing on the San Diego cake with a 41-yard field goal with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

DECEMBER 1

Boston 17; Buffalo 7

It was bitter cold and icy in Boston as the Bills and the Patriots fought it out. The AFL Eastern Division title wasn't quite in the balance but everyone thought it was. The Bills drew first blood. Cookie Gilchrist banged in from the 1 thereby terminating a 79-yard, 10-play drive. Ed Rutkowski grabbed a Jack Kemp pass good for 31 and then ran for another 15 to eat up the sequences principal yardage. Babe Parilli, however got untracked in the third period. As cool as the temperature, he passed up the middle a total of 44 to Larry Garron in the teeth of a Buffalo safety blitz. Then Babe broke the tie himself by rolling home from the two, after hitting Artie Graham with a 63-yard pass. Gino Cappelletti added the fourth-period insult to injury with a field goal from the 43 and the Bills championship hopes were dormie two.

DECEMBER 8

Buffalo 45; New York 14

It was Cookie Gilchrist's day, all day. The bruising fullback rolled up 243 single-game record-shattering yards and the desperate Bills kept their slim championship hopes alive. Cookie toted five times on culminating runs of 4, 1, 1, 19 and 6. He carried 36 times while Daryle Lamonica, who quarterbacked all the way, attempted just 16 passes. Daryle completed 10 including a 23-yard scorer to Elbert Dubenion. Mack Yoho had a 13-yard field goal and, of course, the extra points. The Jets lost quarterback Dick Wood early in the game when Tom Sestak lathered the lanky sharpshooter. Replacement Galen Hall did his best, completing 15 of 37 passess including one of 23 scoring yards to Don Maynard. Hall also engineered a 67-yard New York scoring drive; Mark Smolinski plunging from a yard out. But this was Cookie's day.

DECEMBER 14

Buffalo 19; New York 10

They rang the sports curtain down on the historic Polo Grounds this day. It was a fitting climax. The ancient Buffalo All-Americans played the first pro football game in the park in 1920. They beat the Canton Bulldogs, 7-3. The Bills helped close the shop up and got into the AFL's Eastern Division playoff at the same time with the 19-10 win. Cookie Gilchrist picked up where he had left off the week before. The massive fullback gained 33 yards during the Bills initial drive that set up Mack Yoho's ice-breaking 13-yard field goal. In all, Cookie gained 114 yards rushing. The gallant Jets, tough and courageous, grabbed a late first-period lead when Don Maynard outwrestled Willie West for Galen Hall's pass and then completed the 73-yard scoring play unmolested. Dick Guesman placekicked the Bills into 10-3 halftime frustration although Jack Kemp had Buffalo knocking on the door at the 5 as the gun sounded. With Kansas City clobbering Boston and the press box keeping them abreast of developments, the Bills rallied their sputtering title hopes and marched 56 yards in 9 plays midway through the third period. Kemp, on 4th down, rolled in from the 4. The extra point try was blocked, but the sanscrit was on the parchment. Cookie boomed up the middle from the two in the fourth period after Kemp had passed to Dubenion for 32. Yoho decked Hall for a two-point safety a couple of minutes later and Buffalo was in the Eastern Division championship playoff.

DECEMBER 28

at BUFFALO

Boston 26; Buffalo 8

Not only belated, it also was a disappointing Christmas present the Bills handed 33,044 loyal, if half-frozen, fans this division play-off day. The Patriots were just too tough. From the time Gino Cappelletti booted a 28-yard field goal at the 7:35 mark of the first period, the situation deteriorated from desperate to worse. Larry Garron grabbed a Babe Parilli swing pass, also in the first period, and "cold-footed" it 59 yards to provide a 10-0 Boston lead. Cappelletti kicked 12 and 33 yard field goals in the second period and to make matters worse — the concession stands ran low on coffee. Hope sprang high early in the third. Daryle Lamonica unleashed a mighty heave from the Bills end zone. Elbert Dubenion galloped behind Dick Felt; gathered it in at midfield and completed a 93-yard (from scrimmage) scoring play. It was 16-8. But Garron caught a 17-yard pass from Parilli and Cappelletti was on target from 36 yards out in the fourth period. Buffalo's loyal fans trudged mournfully out . . . frozen from cold and deep remorse.

BILLS' NEWSPAPER, RADIO AND TV INFORMATION

All Buffalo Bills' games, at home and away, are broadcast exclusively over Radio Station WBEN. Van Miller is the Bills' play-by-play announcer.

Buffalo Bills' games are telecast by contractual agreement between the American Football League and the American Broadcasting Company. WKBW-TV is the Buffalo A.B.C. network affiliate, transmitting scheduled telecasts of the Bills' games away from home from their points of origination throughout the entire Niagara Frontier area.

The Buffalo Bills Quarterback Club Show, featuring Coach Lou Saban, will be telecast each Saturday at 5:00 P.M. over WGR-TV—(Channel 2).

Highlights of the Bills' games will be telecast each Wednesday over WKBW-TV—(Channel 7) at 10:30 P.M.
